Me PAUL-HENRI JAQUET

NOTAIRE · LA CHAUX-DE-FONDS

La Chaux-de-Fonds, 10 December 1936
Monsieur Casimir Delorme, by hand

Dear Sir,

As you instructed, I have prepared your new will for signature in Vienna on Monday 21 December, before my colleague Dr Leitner, who will act as witness.

Your present will, of 4 May 1932, leaves your estate in two equal halves to Madame Margit Delorme and to Monsieur Raoul Delorme. It remains in force until you sign.

Under the new will:

1. Madame Delorme receives the house at Montreux and a life annuity of 30,000 francs;
2. Monsieur Raoul Delorme receives one third of your shares in Delorme & Cie;
3. Mademoiselle Klara Imhof, whom you acknowledge as your daughter, receives one third of your shares;
4. The last third is held in trust for the pension fund of the workers of Delorme & Cie.

May I remind you that point 3 cannot be undone once it is signed, and that until it is signed it has no force.

Your devoted servant,

P.-H. Jaquet

To the Management, Société Transalpine de Wagons-Lits, Paris.

Gentlemen, on 3 November, on this same train, your attendant E. Steffel was drunk on duty and could not be woken when I rang. I let it pass with a warning. ~~I am sorry to say~~ Tonight he smells of grappa again.

I must ask that he be removed from the Nocturne. I have told him so.

For the attention of M. Casimir Delorme

Re: Barić v. Delorme & Cie, Commercial Court, Vienna

Sir,

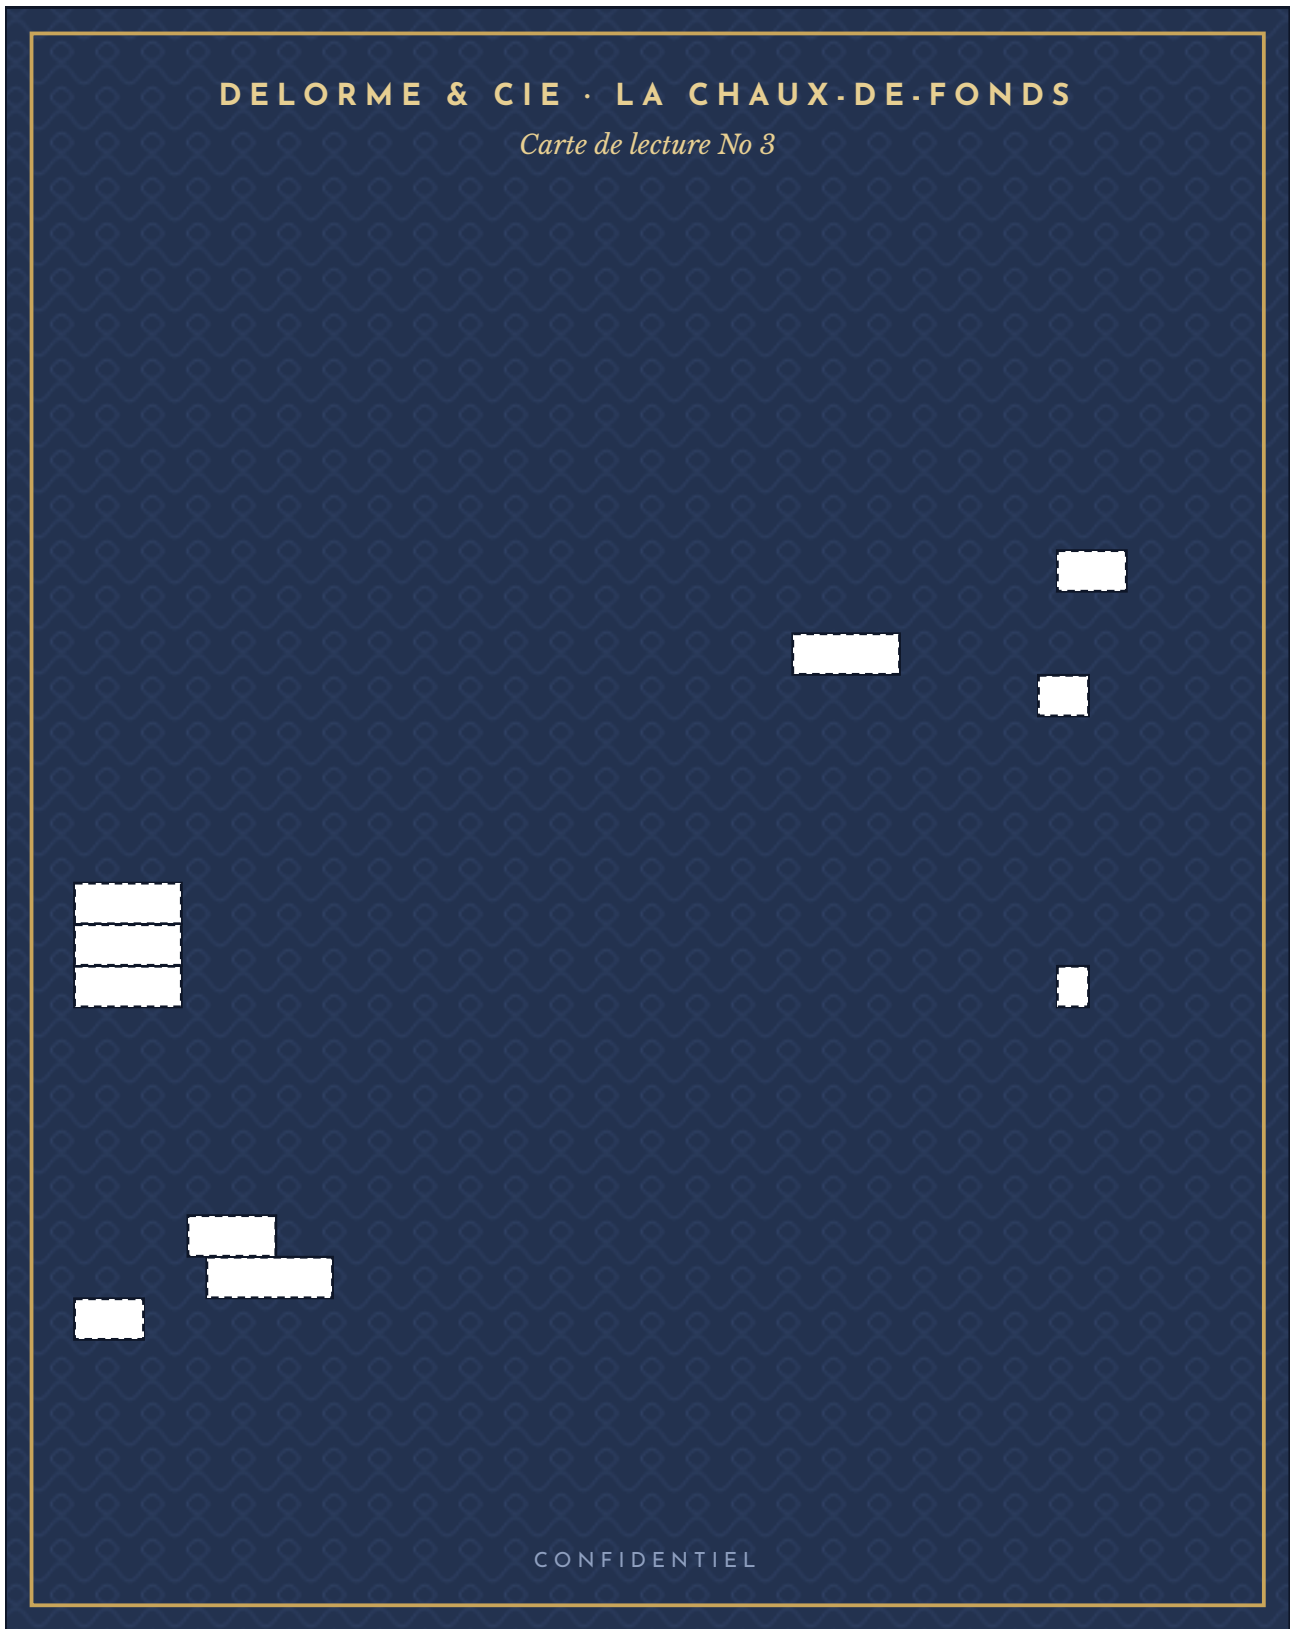

I write to give you notice that the hearing in the above matter is fixed for Tuesday 22 December at 10 a.m.

My client, Mr Tomislav Barić, maintains that the escapement your firm sells as the Nocturne calibre is the one he designed and built in your workshop in 1924, and that your patent of 1925 was filed without his knowledge. He will produce in court the original clock in which that escapement first ran, and his workbooks.

My client asks me to say that he bears you no personal ill will, and that a settlement is still possible: his name on the patent, and a fair share of the royalties. You will find him on your train on the 18th. He will hand you a copy of these papers himself.

Yours faithfully,

Dr B. Šimić

*A stiff card from the pocket in the lid of the dispatch case, exactly the size of a sheet of typing paper. Someone has cut little windows in it with a sharp knife. On the back, in Mr Delorme's hand: for Morand's letters only.*

Cut out the card along its outer edge, then cut out every white window with a craft knife or small scissors. Lay it on a typewritten page, edges together. Print at 100% (actual size) so the card fits the pages exactly.

Personal and confidential

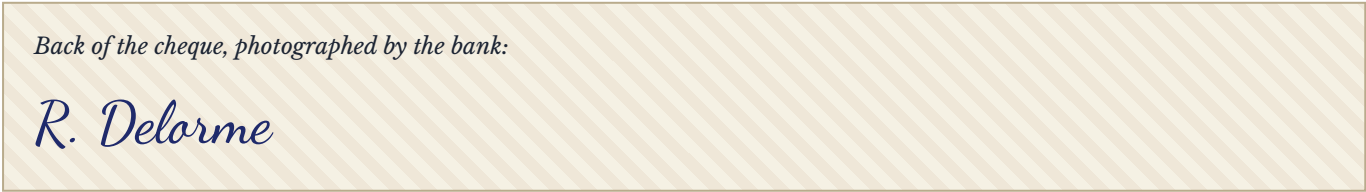

Dear Mr Delorme,

On 7 December a cheque for 40,000 francs, drawn on the account of Delorme & Cie and bearing your signature, was presented at our counter by Mr Raoul Delorme and paid in cash.

Our chief cashier has since noticed that the signature is not quite in your usual hand. We should be most grateful if you would confirm that you wrote this cheque. Until we hear from you we have stopped all further payments to Mr Raoul Delorme's order.

With our highest regards,

E. Mottier, Director

14 Doughty Street, London W.C.1 · 2 October 1936

Dear Mr Delorme,

You have not answered my three letters, so I shall be plain.

My sister Edith painted the dials of your Nocturne watches in your workshop at La Chaux-de-Fonds from 1925 to 1930. The glowing ones. She licked her brush to a fine point after every figure, as your foremen taught the girls to do. She died in 1932, aged twenty-four, with radium in her jaw.

I am writing about your workshop, and it will be printed whether you speak to me or not. I would rather you spoke to me.

I shall be on the Nocturne on 18 December.

Constance Pryor

Kept in the dispatch case with two earlier letters from Miss Pryor. None was answered.
